About the Program

As a way of maintaining and extending our deep-rooted commitment to emerging writers, The Adroit Journal’s Summer Mentorship Program aims to pair experienced writers with high school students (as of the current academic year) interested in learning more about the creative writing processes of drafting, redrafting and editing.

The program is free to all, and is entirely online. The 2016 program will cater to the literary genres of poetry, fiction, and nonfiction. The aim of the mentorship program is not formalized instruction, but rather an individualized, flexible, and often informal correspondence. It is our hope that mentees will feel comfortable sharing work at their own leisure with their mentors and, ultimately, with each other.

The 2016 summer mentorship program will be open for applications via Submittable until April 15, 2016. The program will last from June 26, 2016 until August 5, 2016, and will be capped at sixty students.

Please note that this opportunity will not offer academic credit (this is a friendship, not a class!), and that participation in this workshop is not a route to publication in the journal.

How do I apply?

Applications for this year’s mentorship program consist of two mandatory parts—a Writer’s Statement and a Writing Sample, with the additional voluntary component of an academic transcript in .PDF form. The Writer’s Statement should detail the applicant’s specific interest in pursuing The Adroit Journal’s summer mentorship program. What is it about our program and mission that piques your interest? Why this workshop? How would you spend your time with us? We want to know. Aim for between 1-1.5 pages double spaced, and don’t be afraid to be creative and original. We like that.

While we of course suggest mentioning your experience and accomplishment with the writing and workshop processes, we will evaluate applications looking primarily for demonstrated passion and interest. We’d also like to suggest that you review the mission, ambition, and content of the journal for inspiration, if you find yourself stuck.

Each year, students ask for tips. Here’s the biggest one we can give: tell us why you want to spend your summer in this program, rather than a general summer writing or reading or editing. As always, the more specifics, the better.

The Writing Sample should consist of between four and five poems or between eight and ten pages of fiction or nonfiction (excerpts acceptable).

Students who wish to apply to multiple genres may do so by utilizing both the First Choice and Second Choice options in the mentorship application form here. Important: If you wish to apply to more than one genre, please include two complete writing samples, one for each genre, with your second-choice genre following the first.

The Application

This upcoming year’s program will be open for applications via our submission manager until April 15, 2016 at 11:59 PM EST. The program will last from June 26, 2016 until August 5, 2016, and will be capped at sixty students.

Applicants should possess firm work ethic and some familiarity with the writing and workshop processes, and should be comfortable with receiving (and giving) commentary and critique. Applicants should also possess the will to explore and improve!

At the end of the day, we are looking for the best potential: the writers with the drive to explore and discuss, the courage to delete and leap, and the determination to apply what they discover to future writings.

It is incredibly difficult (read: impossible) to quantify any given student’s writing skill in the greater context of other students.

More than anything else, we view the existing competitive nature of opportunities for emerging writers [such as this mentorship program, for example] as a necessary evil. As is the case with adult writers, we view writing as an inherently collaborative, connection-based activity, not a competitive one, and like to stress the former throughout the duration of the mentorship.

That said, we recognize the unique and meaningful doors that the following awards programs (and many others!) unlock for students who—through a combination of aesthetic luck and, yes, substantial talent, promise, and potential—are fortunate enough to be recognized at the highest level.

We are grateful for the existence of such opportunities for those that they are able to recognize, and encourage our mentees to view rejection as an inevitable component of the submission process, as a force (albeit a frustrating one) that all writers face in their early careers.

With this mindset, we are incredibly proud to cheer from the sidelines for all of our mentorship students, whether they choose to participate in and/or are eligible for such awards programs or not.

Scholastic Art & Writing Awards

Each year, the Alliance for Young Artists and Writers partners with more than 100 visual arts and literary arts organizations across the country to bring the Awards to local communities. Each year, teens in grades 7 through 12 apply in 29 categories of art and writing. Panelists look for works that best exemplify originality, technical skill, and the emergence of a personal voice or vision.

Last year, students submitted 300,000 works of art and writing to the Awards; 13,000 works of art and writing were recognized with Gold Keys (the top regional award) and celebrated in local exhibitions and ceremonies. From this batch, the top 2,000 works in the country earned National Medals and were later celebrated at a ceremony at Carnegie Hall. Selections from the Scholastic Art & Writing Awards are published in the National Catalog and The Best Teen Writing, which are distributed to schools and libraries nationwide.

Since its inception in 2013, the mentorship program has educated students who have received more than a hundred National Scholastic Gold and Silver Medals for Poetry, Flash Fiction, Short Story, Personal Essay/Memoir, Dramatic Script, and Senior Writing Portfolio, among others, as well as a host of American Voices Medals, bestowed to work selected as the best of its geographical region.

The 2016 Scholastic Art & Writing Awards regional results were released in early February, and members of the Adroit mentorship network received a total of 124 Regional Gold Keys, the top regional honor for submitted work, in the following categories:

WRITING GOLD KEYS: 112
- Senior Writing Portfolio: 15
- Critical Essay: 3
- Dramatic Script: 3
- Flash Fiction: 10
- Journalism: 2
- Personal Essay/Memoir: 9
- Poetry: 60
- Short Story: 10

ART GOLD KEYS: 12

AMERICAN VOICES AWARD NOMINATIONS: 3

The National YoungArts Foundation identifies and nurtures the most accomplished young artists in the visual, literary, design and performing arts and assists them at critical junctures in their educational and professional development. Each year, students between the ages of 15 and 18 are recognized as Finalists, Honorable Mentions, or Merit Award Recipients.

YoungArts serves as the exclusive nominating agency for the U.S. Presidential Scholars in the Arts designation, the country’s highest honor for young artists. Presidential Scholars in the Arts receive a Presidential Medal at the White House and perform at the Kennedy Center and exhibit at the Smithsonian.

YoungArts alumni who have become leading professionals in their fields include Vanessa Williams, Viola Davis, Kerry Washington, Nicki Minaj, Desmond Richardson, and Ricky Ubeda, as well as acclaimed writers Sam Lipsyte, Allegra Goodman, and Naomi Wolf, among others.

YoungArts aspires to create a community of alumni that provides a lifetime of encouragement, opportunity and support.

The Adroit Journal has supported 48 high school writers who have been recognized for Poetry, Short Story, Creative Nonfiction, Dramatic Script, Novel, and Spoken Word, as well as Music — Piano and Cinematic Arts. Many of these students have ultimately been recognized as United States Presidential Scholars in the Arts.

The list of 2016 United States Presidential Scholar nominees was released in January, and members of the Adroit mentorship network received a total of four nominations in the following categories:

Walker Caplan (Seattle, Wash.) — Academics
Lindsay Emi (Calabasas, Calif.) — Writing: Creative Nonfiction
Lucy Silbaugh (Jenkintown, Penn.) — Writing: Short Story
Audrey Spensley (Avon Lake, Ohio) — Writing: Poetry

Prose Editor Isabella Nilsson has also been nominated for the 2016 U.S. Presidential Scholar designation, for Writing: Short Story.

She has been recognized as a semi-finalist for the “Discovery”/Boston Review Poetry Prize, as well as a finalist for the Indiana Review Poetry Prize, the Black Warrior Review Poetry Prize, the Black River Chapbook Competition from Black Lawrence Press, and most recently the Button Poetry Chapbook Contest. Currently, she reads English as a second-year undergraduate student at the University of Cambridge, and has mentored for the summer mentorship program since 2014.

February 2016: Carissa Chen (Poetry Mentor: Aria Aber, 2015) was named one of two runners-up for the Kenyon Review’s 2016 Patricia Grod Poetry Prize, selected by Editor-at-Large Natalie Shapero from nearly 1,000 submissions. Her poem “Parable” will be published in a forthcoming issue of the Kenyon Review.

January 2016: Alex Greenberg (Poetry Mentee: Cody Ernst, 2015), currently a junior at the Fieldston School in New York, may be sixteen, but his poetry appears or will soon appear Salt Hill Journal, Puerto Del Sol, DIALOGIST, Grist, The Florida Review, and The Cortland Review, among others.

January 2016: Mentorship Founder & Director Peter LaBerge and Mentee-Turned-Mentor Talin Tahajian were featured in Teen Vogue as 2/9 of “These Nine Young Poets Are Actually Making the Genre Cool Again,” alongside Danez Smith and Sarah Kay. Also included are The Adroit Journal contributors Fatimah Asghar, sam sax, and Ocean Vuong. (Though, really, poetry has always been cool.)

January 2016: Jacob Oet (Mentee, 2013) was recently named the winner of Arcadia’s Ruby Irene Poetry Chapbook Contest for “with porcupine.” Jacob, currently an undergraduate student at Swarthmore College, is the author of a staggering six other poetry chapbooks, and his poems have appeared in Sugar House Review, Flyway, Harpur Palate, Cream City Review, and others.

January 2016: Amanda Silberling (Mentee, 2013), now an acclaimed music journalist, photographer, and poet, coordinated an incredibly important and successful panel at the University of Pennsylvania’s Kelly Writers House entitled “Shifting the Gaze: Women in Music,” featuring Camae Ayewa, Fran Blanche, Diane Foglizzo, Maria Raha, and Cynthia Schemmer.

December 2015: Brynne Rebele-Henry (Poetry Mentee: Talin Tahajian, 2015) is sixteen, and her debut hybrid book of poetry Fleshgraphs (previously recognized as a finalist for the 2015 Cleveland State University First Book Poetry Competition) will be released from Nightboat Books later this year. Brynne has also published her poetry and fiction in Prairie Schooner and Denver Quarterly, among others, and writes for the blog of The Adroit Journal (where, by the way, she has published both poetry and fiction).

October 2015: Madeline Kim (Poetry Mentor: Peter LaBerge, 2014) temporarily hung up her poetry hat to accept the Norman Mailer High School Creative Nonfiction Award at the annual NCTE Ceremony in New York City.

October 2015: Shortly after being recognized as a 2015 U.S. Presidential Scholar in the Arts for Writing (Poetry & Short Story), Oriana Tang (Poetry Mentor: Peter LaBerge, 2014) was named one of two 2015 Davidson Fellows for Literature, for her multi-genre project “Writing Tears from the Stars: A Linguistic Revitalization of Human Empathy.” Now a freshman at Yale University and prose reader for The Adroit Journal, she was honored in Washington, D.C. and received a $25,000 scholarship.

September 2015: Yasmin Belkhyr (Mentee, 2013), founder and editor-in-chief of Winter Tangerine Review, has curated electric and necessary spotlight features such as Imaginary Homelands, Hands Up Don’t Shoot, and Reshaping the Bell Jar to amplify the voices of minority writers around the world.

Testimonials

“I can honestly say that the Adroit Journal summer mentorship program was an invaluable experience. My writing benefitted tremendously from the feedback of my mentor and peers, and I made connections with fellow writers that to this day help me as I take steps in the writing world. I incurred all the benefits, if not more, of an expensive residential writing program. The opportunity to gain honest feedback from talented writers gave me the confidence to take further steps in my writing career.”

—Rebecca Alifimoff, Indiana (USA), 2014 Mentee

“This mentorship program was truly a remarkable experience. Not only were the mentors and mentees professional and thorough, they were open-minded to my ideas and ideologies, my beliefs and personal predilections. They didn’t rewrite my work for me but pushed me towards discovery and revision through their thought-provoking questions about imagery, form, and syntax.”

—Alex Greenberg, New York (USA), 2015 Mentee

“The Adroit Journal’s mentorship was incredible! The mentorship really helped me find a steady poetic voice and learn how to intensively edit my work, and I also made lasting friendships with other mentees and mentors. In fact, one of the other mentees, Aidan Forster, and I went on to create an online community for young LGBT+ writers once the mentorship ended. The mentorship helped me find a writing community for the first time. I would strongly recommend this mentorship to anyone who hopes to pursue writing, better their work, or surround themselves with incredible writers. The journal and its network of emerging writers never cease to astound me.”

—Brynne Rebele-Henry, Virginia (USA), 2015 Mentee

“Besides learning to experiment with the technical elements of poetry, I also learned to find inspiration all around me. It wasn’t too hard to find some in the work of my peers and mentors, who constantly amazed me with their passion and skill. ... This summer, I learned that life is imbued with poetry — you just have to see it.”

—Jamie Uy, Singapore, 2015 Mentee
Mentorship Alumni

The Adroit Journal is proud to present the following list of high school mentorship program alumni. Students enter the program with varying levels of workshop and writing experience, and come from schools of all sorts. In this list, half of the United States is represented, as well as the United Kingdom, South Africa, India, Singapore, and China. Year of participation is noted in parenthesis.

Anthology Presence

The journal is currently published on a quarterly online basis. Funded in large part by the Kelly Writers House at the University of Pennsylvania, the journal sponsors the annual Adroit Prizes for Poetry and Prose to recognize exceptional secondary and undergraduate writers, as well as the annual online Adroit Journal Summer Mentorship Program.
